

President Xinghu Tao Doing Research at CNMC Luanshya

On May 20, 2013, the Vice Chairman of the board, CEO Xinghu Tao conducted a research at CNMC Luanshya Copper Mines Plc (hereinafter referred to as: Luanshya) in Zambia.

CEO Xinghu Tao visited the Luanshya production field in person to learn more about its production, equipment status, resources, human resources and the measures taken in production and so on. After listening to the report of Xingeng Luo, the executive director and general manager of Luanshya, on the production and management, scientific and technological progress, and the current situation of improving product yield, improving operational efficiency, reducing production costs and other related work, CEO Xinghu Tao on behalf of the company management conveyed the greetings to the Luanshya staff and fully affirmed the achievement of Luanshya through implementing the “two increasing and one decreasing”. President Xinghu Tao gave a comprehensive analysis on the production organization structure, staff ability of performing their duties, equipment maintenance, mining cost control, production management and other aspects of Baluba mine. To further improve the production and operation of the mine, he put forward five requirements: firstly, to optimize the design, strengthen the ore removal management and improve ore grade; Secondly, to strengthen the management of equipment; Thirdly, to continuously enhance employee education according to the personnel structure and to give full play to all Zambia staff's enthusiasm; fourthly, to strengthen the monitoring of production process to reduce the production cost of the mine; fifthly, to strengthen economic grade studies and to determine the ore grade reasonably. He attached great importance to the implementation of established measures to ensure the full completion of the annual operating indicators and contribute more to the transition of the company into an internationally competitive mining company.

Yunsheng Li, Deputy General Manager of Luanshya, Jingjun Wang, Deputy Manager, Zhanyan Li, assistant of general manager, and other related personnel participated in this research.
